Introduction to ADR

There are a variety of problem-solving processes referred to as Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) which provide an alternative to having a trial where a judge makes the decisions for you.

- ADR can offer cost-effective, fast, and appropriate choices for your individual situation.
- These methods are less formal than Court hearings and allow you to have greater influence on the outcome of your dispute.
- You can participate in ADR with or without the assistance of attorneys.
- In Boulder County, parties are required to participate in ADR prior to most contested Court hearings.

Options for Reaching Agreements

You can choose one or a combination of any of these options to resolve your dispute either prior to filing or after you start a Court case by filing your petition:

- Negotiation on your own
- Mediation
- Arbitration
- Mediation-Arbitration
- Settlement Conference
- Working with attorneys through representation or consultation

You can use these options to complete all or part of the documents necessary to finalize your settlement.

NOTE: If you are under a Protective Order or a “No Contact” provision in a bond, you need to ask the Court for an exception to allow ADR.

Negotiation on your Own

You and the other party(ies) can discuss and try to settle your differences together. You can fill out all of the necessary paperwork for the Court yourselves. You have the option to consult with an attorney, accountant, therapist, or other professional. There is an on-line self-help center with instructions and forms at www.courts.state.co.us/chs/court/forms/selfhelpcenter.htm

Mediation

Both of you can hire a trained neutral mediator to assist you in reaching your own agreement in an informal and confidential setting. The mediator helps create a safe environment so that each person has a chance to be heard. Sometimes you and the other party(ies) will be in separate rooms to ensure a productive and/or safe process. If you have attorneys, they may participate in the mediation. A mediator cannot give legal advice to any party.

The mediator does not decide the outcome – the agreements are up to you. The mediator helps you:

- Clarify issues
- Identify your needs and interests
- Create options that best meet the identified needs and interests

Some cases are resolved in one or two meetings, while others take longer. Even if the entire case is not settled, mediation can be helpful to reach agreements on some issues prior to going to trial.

The mediator may put your agreements in written form for your signature, or you or your attorney can write the agreement. If you are unable to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement on all or part of the issues through mediation, and if you are otherwise unable to resolve the issues on your own or with the assistance of attorneys, your case will be set for a Court trial.

Mediation is a good option when you want to work cooperatively and when you will have an ongoing business or other relationship with each other. Parties who reach their own agreements tend to be more satisfied than parties who go to a Court hearing.

Arbitration

Both of you can hire a trained neutral person to make all or some of the decisions upon which you cannot agree. Arbitration can be helpful when you want a quick resolution, as it can be faster and less formal than Court hearings. It is a more formal option than mediation as you, or your attorney, present your information under oath and provide supporting documents. The formality of the process can vary. You can choose an arbitrator with expertise in the issues to be arbitrated. There is only a limited right to a Court rehearing or Court review of a binding arbitration decision. The written arbitration award becomes part of the Court file and public record.

Mediation-Arbitration (Med-Arb)

You begin by mediating, but you agree that if you cannot resolve specified issues, then your mediator becomes an arbitrator and makes binding decisions on those unresolved issues. It provides an opportunity to work out your own solutions and to break any deadlocks. It ensures that a final decision is made. When you have an ongoing business or other relationship with the other party(ies), mediation encourages voluntary communication and settlement, with arbitration being used to decide those issues upon which the two of you cannot reach an agreement.

Settlement Conference

Both of you hire an impartial legal professional to do an informal assessment and conduct a negotiation session. He or she will analyze the issues, evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of your positions, and suggest settlement options based on the law and precedent. He or she may assist you in writing an agreement. The parties may be in separate rooms.

Working with Attorneys

Representation: You may hire an attorney to represent you throughout the process. The attorney will prepare and file the legal documents. He or she will guide you through the legal process by providing the following services:

- a) Advising you of the law and current practices;
- b) Advising you about the use of appropriate experts;
- c) Negotiating with the other party or his/her attorney to achieve a settlement; and
- d) Representing you during any Court hearings or ADR sessions.

Consulting: You may choose to represent yourself, but consult with an attorney at one or more times throughout the process. This choice is especially beneficial for less complex cases. You will be responsible for preparing the necessary paperwork, complying with any Court-imposed deadlines, and negotiating with the other party(ies) or his/her attorney. If you hire an attorney for consultation only, his or her advice will be based upon the information you provide instead of the more in-depth understanding of your specific situation that would be obtained by an attorney hired to represent you. People often consult with an attorney before mediation or before signing an agreement reached through mediation.

Note: Whenever you work with attorneys, the same attorney cannot work for more than one party.

Suggested Questions to Ask an ADR Provider

Here are some questions that you may wish to ask in evaluating the qualifications of a prospective ADR provider for your particular situation:

- What specific ADR training do you have?
- How much experience do you have handling this type of dispute?
- What other education, training & experience do you have which will help in mediating my situation?
- Do you know the other party or the other party's representative(s)? If so, what is the nature of the relationship?
- Do you participate in on-going supervision and/or consultation with other ADR providers?
- Are you a member of an professional organizations which have a Code of Professional Conduct?
- If I have an attorney or decide to work with an attorney, what will the attorney's role be in the process?
- If the Court orders ADR, what role do you take in legal proceedings?
- What documents, if any, do you prepare?
- What are the fees for the process and how are the fees allocated? What services are included? Are parties billed for phone and preparation time?
- Can you provide names of non-confidential references I can contact?

Directory of ADR Providers

The following directory is provided for your consideration and lists the contact, fees, background and training information for ADR providers who have signed up for this Directory. County Court Mediation Program providers adhere to the county court fee guidelines of $50 per party per hour for any civil case filed in Boulder County Court.

This directory is maintained in alphabetical order as a service to the public, and the Boulder County Bar Association and the 20th Judicial District do not endorse any of the providers on this list. They have not validated any of the information for accuracy, screened any of the providers for competence, nor conducted a criminal or background check. This material is supplied by the providers themselves and has not been verified. The information in this list is subject to change.

In addition to these private ADR providers, the Office of Dispute Resolution (ODR) is a state agency that also provides ADR services. To learn fee information and professional qualifications of ADR providers working for ODR in the 20th Judicial District, call (303) 837-3672.

Related Background: I served as a District Court Judge in the 20th Judicial District, Boulder, Colorado, from 2005 to 2012. In my capacity as a District Court Judge, I served in the following rotations: Domestic, Civil, and Criminal. I am very familiar with the current District Court bench in Boulder, as well as the administration and processes within the 20th Judicial District Courts. From 2003 until 2005, I served as an administrative Law Judge in the Office of Administrative Courts, Denver, Colorado. My primary responsibilities as an Administrative Law Judge were to sit as a trier of fact in proceedings involving Workers' Compensation disputes. From 1994 until 2003, I served as an Administrative Law Judge in the Colorado Department of Labor and Employment, Division of Worker' Compensation. My primary responsibilities in this capacity were to serve as a settlement conference mediator/facilitator (approximately 70%) and as a pre-hearings magistrate (approximately 30%). I am also listed on the Roster of Neutrals with the American Arbitration Association.

My goal is to assist parties in resolving their disputes as amicably as possible and in a common sense practical approach without the necessity of relying on our system of Courts, which can oftentimes be inefficient and expensive.
